Introducing . . . .

SIERRA COINS

Hello again! Many of you know me as the voice that usually answers your phone calls to Freeman Craig & Company. However, quite a few of you will remember that I managed "Viking Coins" as a subsidiary of Cordry & Craig, International until it ceased operations after list #13 in April 1975. Ever since it was terminated due to Freeman and Scott having divided their businesses, I have really missed Viking. It has been three full years now but I remember well the raport I had with the 25 or so clients who would only buy from Viking (or so they told me!). In those days I recall receiving 150 or so orders from nearly every list, filling them each morning, and eventually selling 75% or more of all the pieces I had to list. It was a crazy market then - it seemed like I could sell anything as long as the price was fair. The only hangup then was waiting for Freeman to write up his purchases out of South America and for Scott to prepare his when he returned from Europe or England.

I know that a lot has changed since then. Coin collectors seem a lot more sophisticated now in terms of what they want to add to their collections. The desire now is for really choice specimens or truly rare coins. But there is also a steady demand from a fairly large group of collectors who are not overly affluent, and they want coins they can afford without going hungry at the same time. I finally convinced Freeman that it would be better to start a new "Viking" type compnay rather than only wholesale his inexpensive coins as he has been doing the past couple of years.

To fully appreciate what I mean by this, you need to understand what Freeman's basic operation is. His source of supply of new coins is dissimilar to most dealers in that the great majority of his purchases are made during his frequent travels to South and Central America, or from collectors in the US or Europe that work very closely with him while assembling their collections. He often purchases groups of 100-5,000 coins just to get 10% that he wants for his pricelists. The remaining pieces can be sold at very reasonable prices. And that's what Sierra Coins will be offering.

Anyhow, enough of that. Do remember that I am ready and able to work with each of you in building up your collections. I will work closely with your lists of "second choices" should your primary picks be previously sold. If you need to pay in more than one installment, I can work with you in virtually any reasonable manner you propose. I will do what I can to make Sierra Coins even more successful than Viking was - and that is no small chore. Looking forward to hearing from you.

(Ms) Marney Albert

The above group, combined with the five crowns listed in the crown section, represent one of the better groups of Uruguay coins to be offered recently. The popularity of this series can be ascertained simply by noting the substantial prices realized for the pieces in the NASCA auction last December. Additonally, the attribution by die variety should aid the specialist.
